Speedy Study Guides PERIODIC TABLE (BASIC)

The elements with the same colors belong to the same families. The color of the element indicates its physical state at room temperature.

Hydrogen
Hydrogen is a chemical element with chemical symbol H and atomic number 1. With an atomic weight of 1.00794 u, hydrogen is the lightest element on the periodic table. Its monatomic form (H) is the most abundant chemical substance in the universe, comprising roughly 75% of all baryonic mass. Rare isotopes of hydrogen are mostly composed of hydrogen with greater mass. The most common isotope of hydrogen, protium (denoted ¹H), has a single proton and zero neutrons.

Helium
Helium is a chemical element with symbol He and atomic number 2. It is a colorless, odorless, tasteless, non-toxic, inert, monatomic gas that heads the noble gas group in the periodic table. Its boiling and melting points are the lowest among the elements and it exists only as a gas except in extreme conditions.

Lithium
Lithium (from Greek λίθος, "stone") is a chemical element with symbol Li and atomic number 3. It is a soft, silver-white metal belonging to the alkali metal group of chemical elements. Under standard conditions it is the lightest metal and the least dense solid element. Like all alkali metals, lithium is highly reactive and flammable. For this reason, it is especially stored in mineral oil. When cut open, lithium exhibits a metallic luster, but contact with moist air corrodes the surface quickly to a dull silvery gray, then black layers. Because of its high reactivity, lithium never occurs freely in nature, and instead, only appears in compounds, which are usually salts. Lithium occurs in a number of igneous rocks, but due to its solubility in sea water it is present in ocean water and is commonly obtained from brines and clays.
