More important than its social features, is the fact that it gathers together in annual council the friends of the University, to consider its interests, discuss its problems and promote its welfare. At these annual banquets, we renew our loyalty and increase our zeal in the service of our Alma Mater. Those who gather here are largely the leaders of educational thought in the State, and hence, these annual meetings constitute a potent force in making for progress and the formation of a sound opinion as to our educational conditions and needs. Under the wise administration of Dr. Denny, the University has made steady progress. During the past two years the enrollment of students has increased from three hundred and ninety to six hundred and eighteen, and considering...
