Excerpt from Personal Recollections of the Vicksburg Campaign: A Paper Read Before the Ohio Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States Troops were ferried across the river to a narrow strip of bottom-land which intervened between the river and the lofty, precipitous bluff. A roadway, walled in with high vertical banks, cut through the bluff, led from the river bottom up to the table land above. A small force could have held this pass against an army; but it was left unguarded, and the army marched up. The 16th corps was in advance. Our brigade did not reach the field of Port Gibson till the battle was over; but was sent in the dark of early night a few miles in pur suit of the retreating force. All through the campaign, the army always marched over and beyond the field of battle before halting for the night.
