How religious values (Jewish and Christian) originated the technological cultural of the West in the early Middle Ages.

By Ulrich Becker

GRIN Verlag. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 32 pages. Seminar paper from the year 2008 in the subject Cultural Studies - Miscellaneous, printed single-sided, grade: 0, 7, Bezalel Academy of Arts and Design (Bezalel Academy of Arts and Design, History and Theory), course: Relations between technology and culture, 10 entries in the bibliography, language: English, abstract: Stating today that the Western Civilization is the most technological advanced civilization on earth and in history, will probably not draw many objections, but how and when did this happen? What made Western Europe outstrip the other great civilizations that long held technological superiority over it? In this short essay I try to follow a thought of Professor Lynn Townsend White, seeing the intellectual condition of a society (namely religious values) as the main important factor for its technological development. Although many critics argue against White, downplaying religious value orientation as a possible cause, focusing on technological success of other civilizations in the Middle Ages, portraying the technological mind of western Europe as the consequence and not the cause of its rapid technological growth or portraying the Western leading technological position as a kind of coincidence, I find them...
